

MESSAGE

It gives me immense pleasure and delight to extend my greetings to all seafarers and their families on the occasion of 59th National Maritime Day, which is being celebrated on 05th April, 2022. This solemn occasion of Maritime Day reminds us about the supreme sacrifice of seafarers over the years, especially during the COVID pandemic.

The Seafarers, despite facing many challenges including being stranded onboard for months, continued their dedicated services for timely transportation of essential goods and medical supplies across the Islands. This played a significant role in fighting with this pandemic and saving precious human lives.

In the prevailing changing situation, our shipping fraternity needs to become agile and adaptable. We should focus on building effective response strategies and plan for ensuring swift management of critical situations. I am sure that our seafarers will leave no stone unturned to manage these challenges.

On this special day, I would like to convey my admiration and gratitude to entire Maritime fraternity of these Islands. I also re-affirm my confidence in them and hope that they will continue their service with same passion and verve.

Chief Secretary pushes for direct action on Tourism in A & N Islands

Emphasises on Mass Tourism, Public Tourism, Village Tourism, Gram Tourism, School Tourism, Beach & Heritage Tourism etc. offering exquisite experience of Island life

Tourism has to become functional, interactive & interspersed: CS

Administration chalks out year round tourism activities/festivals to bolster Isles economy

Port Blair, April 4

The Islands' spotless environment endowed with fresh air, azure sea, sandy white beaches dotted with green blanket of trees and amazing historical architecture is an attraction for tourists across globe. It also houses varieties of endemic flora and fauna besides beautiful mangroves and creeks. The Islands offer enormous scope for adventure tourism on both land and sea while it is also an equally ideal destination for those looking to experience tranquillity amidst nature. The pleasant view of the Islands surrounded by shimmering sea and matchless landscape redefines what leisure is all about.

To cash in more tourists and visitors from far and wide, after a hiatus of pandemic break of over two years, the A&N Administration has drawn out an annual calendar featuring various tourism activities/festivals for the year 2022-23 which will be organized in A&N Islands by concerned Departments.

In this regard, the Chief Secretary, A&N Administration, Shri Jitendra Narain has pushed for direct action on tourism focusing on mass tourism, public tourism, village tourism, gram tourism, school tourism and every other kind of tourism. Initially, there were few activities but the Chief Secretary has said that not only activities will take place round the year, but they will take place all over the Islands. With this in view, the SDM, Diglipur will also become Special Director for Tourism there. It is desired that every village will take up tourism potential.

Among the three focuses for Andamans, tourism is one sector, which has to become very functional, interactive and interspersed.

In line with this, the year round activities have been planned keeping in mind the unique local food & culture, diverse cuisines and the breathtaking locations which offer an exquisite experience of the Island life. These events have been planned with the objective of reviving the tourism sector which will in turn boost the Isles economy and provide ample of opportunity for Islanders to earn their livelihood through small and large scale activities.

As part of this initiative, the first in the series of event SHG flea market was organized by RD Department must have a proper plan and executable preparation strategy. An executable strategy acts as a constant motivator for the aspirants of the civil services. He appealed to the participants to draw up right plan and believe in smart work to crack the Civil Services exam.

Shri Hari Kallikkat briefed comprehensively about the pattern of Civil Services exam i.e preliminary, mains and interview being conducted by the UPSC. He spelled out that one must start preparation in advance strictly as per syllabus provided by the UPSC to clear preliminary and mains exams besides reading and noting of national daily news papers especially editorial columns and perusal of NCERT text books from 6th std to 12th std. There are several myths that only toppers can crack the Civil Services exam but the fact remains that even a dedicated aspirant can crack the same with adequate dedication. He emphasized that the Civil Services exam would not test academic brilliance beyond syllabus but would test your perseverance, adaptive skills, courage and positivity and never say die attitude to name a few. One should meticulously allocate sufficient time for each test since the beginning of preparation and the same shall be regular and steadfast. The Civil Services render ample opportunities to serve disadvantaged sections of the society thereby to get sense of utmost job satisfaction.

Kum. B Yashaswani elucidated that it is ideal to read current affairs in the morning, prelims in the afternoon, study for optional subject in the evening and round it off with Mains subject at night and one must evaluate their preparation at regular intervals and sufficient time need to be spared for testing through practice and mock interviews at regular intervals which will act as a feedback mechanism in rectifying mistakes. One should keep in mind that bookish knowledge is not sufficient to clear the exam as the recruitment process is designed to test endurance, discipline and self belief.

Shri R. Kalaivanan stated that the UPSC conducts the Civil Services Exam to recruits suitable candidates for IAS, IPS, IFS and other allied services. Lakhs of aspirants apply for the exam, yet only a few achieve the feat therefore the aspirants of Civil Service must develop the source of inner motivation and inner resistance and resilience. To achieve success in Civil Service, a plan of action designed to achieve a long term aim is necessary. The only secret formula for success in Civil Service exam or any other competitive exam is consistent and focussed efforts.

The achievements of IAS Officers who made significant social changes in society has been displayed in the mode of standees in the Tagore College of Education auditorium with an objective to motive the students to venture into the Civil Services.

At the end of the programme, the aspirants and teachers from various schools/colleges expressed their gratitude for conducting such beneficial programme and requested to conduct the same at regular intervals. Shri Hari Kallikkat, IAS, Secretary (L&ET) gave instructions to the Department accordingly, a press release from Deptt. of Labour & Employment said.
