This cultivar belongs to the triploid genomic group ABB. The plants are tall, robust growing to a height of 3-4 m. Pseudostem has a circumference of 50-70 cm and light pink in colour. Leaf production is more in this cultivar and is suitable to grow for leaf purpose. Inflorescence emerges 12-13 months after planting and bunches are harvested 15 -16 months after planting. Bunch weight ranges from 15-18 Kg. The number of hands per bunch varies from 8-12 with 14-16 fruits per hand. Pulp is creamish white in colour, firm and very sweet. ## Nobel Prize for physics awarded to scientists from Japan, Germany & Italy

Stockholm, Oct. 5

This year's Nobel Prize in Physics is awarded with one half jointly to Syukuro Manabe of Princeton University USA and Klaus Hasselmann from Max Planck Institute for Meteorology, Hamburg, Germany "for the physical modelling of Earth's climate, quantifying variability and reliably predicting global warming" and the other half to Giorgio Parisi from Sapienza University of Rome, Italy "for the discovery of the interplay of disorder and fluctuations in physical systems from atomic to planetary scales".

Three Laureates share this year's Nobel Prize in Physics for their studies of chaotic and apparently random phenomena. Syukuro Manabe and Klaus Hasselmann laid the foundation of our knowledge of the Earth's climate and how humanity influences it. Giorgio Parisi is rewarded for his revolutionary contributions to the theory of disordered materials and random processes.

Complex systems are characterised by randomness and disorder and are difficult to understand. This year's Prize recognises new methods for describing them and predicting their long-term behaviour.

One complex system of vital importance to humankind is Earth's climate. Syukuro Manabe demonstrated how increased levels of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere lead to increased temperatures at the surface of the Earth.

About ten years later, Klaus Hasselmann created a model that links together weather and climate, thus answering the question of why climate models can be reliable despite weather being changeable and chaotic. Around 1980,

Giorgio Parisi discovered hidden patterns in disordered complex materials. His discoveries make it possible to understand and describe many different and apparently entirely random materials and phenomena, not only in Physics but also in other very different areas, such as Mathematics, Biology, Neuroscience and Machine Learning.

The winners were announce today by Secretary General of the Royals Swedish Academy of Sciences, Mr. Goran Hansson. The prestigious award comes with a Gold medal and 10 million Swedish Kronor. The prize money comes from a bequest left by the price creator, Swedish inventor Alfred Nobel, who died in 1895. (Source:india.gov.in)

These changes are necessitated to ensure effective implementation of the scheme and will be made in the Transaction Management System (TMS) to ensure that there are no challenges in portability.
