Fishers in South Andaman to stage Dharna on Nov 16

Port Blair, Nov 10: Fishermen of these islands will organize a Dharna on Nov 16 in front of the office of the Director of Fisheries, A&N Administration to press for some long pending demands of the fishing community. In a letter to the Deputy Commissioner seeking permission for the dharna, Mr. B. Potraj, President, said that since the last 27 years, fishermen community in these islands have been demanding a separate Jetty in Duganabad locality in lieu of the Aberdeen Jetty vacated for the tourism activities during the year 1994. The A&N Administration has constructed a Slope way (newly constructed ramp) at Choulange Jetty (Marine), Port Blair, for fishermen by Fisheries Department but the same has not been provided to the fishermen. The slope way ramp has occupied by an unauthorized occupant which requires to be removed and a clear area be handed over for betterment of fishermen.

community in Duganabad area, said Mr. Potraj. Other issues to be raised during the dharna include release of Subsidy Amount for Purchase of Life Saving Equipment, Safety Equipment's (GPS, Fish Finders and DAT) and issuance of Permit to the South Andaman Fishermen for carrying fishing activities in North & Middle Andaman by passing through Baratang Creek (nallah). There are many restrictions on carrying out fishing in South Andaman on account of National Sanctuary, PAT Regulations etc. Many of the Fishermen have taken under custody on violation of PAT Regulations and cases are registered, whereas the fishermen use the passage of Baratang creek to proceed forward to North & Middle Andaman for carrying out fishing activities. Due to this inaction of the part of A&N Administration the fishermen livelihood is badly affected from last two years, added Mr. Potraj.

No payment for contract functionaries of BSNL from past 6 months

Port Blair, 10th Nov, 2021: As per labour laws, it is the right of functionary to get the admissible payment of wages after a fixed period of the completion of work. But this law is kept aside by organisations and authorities on several occasions for no genuine reason.

Reportedly, the functionaries of contractor hired by Bharat Sanchar Nigam Ltd. for field level duty and technical utilities had not been paid with their wages from past six months. Hundreds of daily wages engaged in various establishments of Bharat Sanchar Nigam Limited (BSNL) throughout the islands and their services are being utilised 24x7. Owing to their sincere efforts, the telecom company has managed to maintain its existence in island up to great extent. But despite their sincere and dedicated service to the organisation, they are barred from timely payment of wages since May, 2021. As told to this daily, the payment to the contractor from BSNL has been delayed. Due to this, contractor failed to pay wages to its functionaries.

The contract workers wrote to the Chief General Manager, BSNL, Port Blair on several occasions, but failed to yield any outcome. Before Dushehra-Deepawali, representatives of contract functionaries met the CGM and submitted their grievances. The CGM assured them release of wage payment. But the commitment was lung into air.

The Nation is celebrating the festive season but the contract workers of BSNL and their families are in dark as they are in not in position to celebrate festivals due to non-receipt of payment from past six months. The contract functionaries of BSNL have once again knocked the door of CGM with the request to release pending payment to contractor, so that their wages can be released.

NSAs' meeting in Delhi

The National Security Advisers' meeting that will be held in Delhi on Wednesday is being billed as India "setting the table and the menu" on Afghanistan. The delegates — from Russia, Iran, Uzbekistan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan — are expected to discuss the security fallout of the Taliban takeover of Afghanistan, and the implications for the region. Pakistan will not attend, and not unexpectedly, China has also cried off, citing other engagements. After two other meetings of this format were held in Iran, it was India's turn to host the meeting end-2020, but the pandemic upset the schedule. India will flag its concerns, including the presence of Pakistan-based UN-designated terrorist entities in Afghanistan, and no doubt others present share these concerns. There is real anxiety that once again, Afghanistan may become "terror central" and the region will have to bear the spillover, and that the model of its takeover of Afghanistan will inspire similar movements in other parts of the world. But it would be wishful thinking to believe that this meeting will help India take charge of the wheel on Afghanistan with other countries eagerly taking their place behind it.

Shaping the agenda in Afghanistan demands presence on the ground, or at least leverage with some, if not all, actors in that country. India could boast of this before the Taliban takeover on August 15. Had Delhi been able to host this gathering of regional powers, big and small, even as late as last year, when its massive development assistance to Afghanistan gave it a game on the ground and friends in the erstwhile political establishment and civil society there, it would have helped draw attention to the security concerns over the situation as it was developing then, even if it could not have changed the direction in which it was going. India does not have this leverage anymore. It has even stopped taking refugees, which could have been one way of retaining some clout in Kabul, and on the international stage.

What is noteworthy is that eight countries in the region, including two heavyweights, Russia and Iran, will be at the table. Most of them also attended a foreign ministers' meeting on Afghanistan in Pakistan, and another in Iran, to neither of which India was invited. Their attendance shows that even if Delhi's role in Afghanistan is limited, each of these countries takes its bilateral relationship with India seriously, and that includes Russia. On the other hand, Pakistan's non-attendance, and the outburst by its National Security Adviser about India as a "spoiler", has served only to show up its irrational antipathy to any role for Delhi in Afghanistan. It is unfortunate that China, whose security concerns over Afghanistan are no different than those of other countries in the region, has also chosen to stay away from the meeting.

He stated that the travelling restrictions are still very much in force for the movement of public in so far as inter islands are concerned. The incoming passengers from mainland requires merely two doses certificate indicating completion of 15 days of vaccination. Whereas for travelling to inter islands there exist other restrictions. All those travelling restrictions can be relaxed to the best possible way for encouraging the tourists and entrepreneurs. Apart from tourists, the local inhabitants of inter islands too are Further he informed that almost two years, a ray of hope was sighted and my fellow islanders who are dependent upon the tourism industry got relief witnessing heavy tourists arrivals. Each of them had sustained heavy losses due to the pandemic and now when everything was appearing to get normalized, unfortunately the tourists are thrown out to face acute hardship in travelling upon various tourists destinations. This is sending wrong signal to the potential tourists who plan to visit these islands, he said. Mr Vishal Jolly has requested to take appropriate steps in order to restore pre-Covid movement of public and encourage tourists as well as tourism industry.

AI-BASED CPR TRAINING AIMS TO MAKE 'BASIC RESPONDERS' OF MALAYALIS

Through a project called 'Basic Responders', Kerala-based medical research firm Brain Wire Medi has developed a CPR technique that uses artificial intelligence and virtual reality technologies. The training for it is done on Training Oriented Feedback Unit (TOFU), a high-fidelity AI-based mannequin developed by the company, which claims it is the first of its kind in the world.

The training module will use VR to create a real-time scenario by simulating an emergency situation which will make them understand the significance of giving CPR and saving a life. TOFU will record each movement and give a live feedback, enabling them to feel the impact of their actions on the body, thereby self-analysing if they have learned the technique correctly.

The five-step process starts with shifting the patient to a safe place, checking their responsiveness and their carotid pulse rate for 10 seconds, performing 30 compressions on the breastbone and finally giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

"This realistic training will help a person, even a child as young as nine, and make them confident enough to perform the technique on a person," said Kiran N.M., founder and director of Brain Wire Medi Technologies.

Kiran had a desire to provide

CPR training for his fellow Malayalis, and the project was developed and honed over time to maximise its utility. This system was developed under the supervision of Dr Mohammed Hanif, who holds an MD in emergency medicine.

The project is also timely as bans of celebrities like Kannada actor Puneeth Rajkumar and Bollywood actor Sidharth Shukla have been left astounded by their sudden death due to cardiac arrest.

Kiran, who similarly lost a friend, gave up his high-paying job in Singapore to come up with something that could instil confidence in every one to perform CPR.

His primary focus is the police force as they are the first to reach an emergency spot. After already training the entire traffic police force of Thiruvananthapuram with his high-tech CPR biofeedback mannequin system, he is on course to equip the police of Ernakulam to become 'basic responders'.

Talking about the training, ACP Sajjan Xavier said, "This was one of the most advanced and practical training I have ever attended. Within a short span of time, you can learn how to do CPR in an innovative way."

The inaugural function of this awareness program was conducted at the Town Hall in Kochi, where the tie-up between Kerala Police and Brain Wire Medi was officially initiated.

IPS officer Aishwarya Dongre, who inaugurated the programme, was the first to try her hands on the biofeedback mannequin.

CBSE to use advanced data analytics to prevent malpractices in exams

New Delhi, 10th Nov, 2021:

The Central Board of Secondary Education (CBSE) will use advanced data analytics to ensure fairness in the examinations by detecting cases/centres where there is a high probability of unfair means during examinations. "CBSE will use advanced data analytics to detect, respond and therefore, in the long run, prevent any irregularities in academic testing across all major CBSE administered exams in the country," the release mentioned.

CBSE conducted a pilot analysis in January in collaboration with Central Square Foundation (CSF) and Play Power Labs to develop algorithms to identify suspicious data patterns at the centre and the individual test-taker level. "Based on the analysis results and the algorithms developed, CBSE has decided that such analysis will be extended to other administered examinations," as per CBSE statement. According to CBSE, the analysis will be used to identify examination centres where the data indicates the existence of malpractices during the conduct of examinations. "Post this, appropriate measures can be taken by CBSE to strengthen the reliability of the examinations and to deter any such malpractices in the future," read CBSE release.

This will be used to strengthen the reliability of National Achievement Survey (NAS), Central Teachers Eligibility Test (CTET) and Board examinations conducted by CBSE, it added. CBSE term-1 exam will commence from November 16, while class 12 exam will be held on November 16, the class 10 exam is scheduled to begin from November 17. Birth Anniversary of Bhagwan Birsa Munda on Nov, 15 to be celebrated as Janjatiya Gaurav Divas

New Delhi, 10th Nov, 2021:

The Union Cabinet, chaired by the Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi, today has approved declaration of 15th November as Janjatiya Gaurav Divas dedicated to the memory of brave tribal freedom fighters so that coming generations could know about their sacrifices about the country. India's freedom struggle was strengthened by several movements by tribal communities such as Santhal, Tamas, Kols, Bhis, Khassias and Mzoes to name a few. The revolutionary movements and struggles organized by the tribal communities were marked by their immense courage and supreme sacrifice. Tribal movements in different regions of the country against the British colonial rule got linked with the national freedom struggle and inspired Indians all over the country. However, the public at large is not much aware about these tribal heroes. Pursuant to the speech of Hon'ble Prime Minister on Independence Day of 2016, Government of India has sanctioned 100 tribal freedom fighter museums across the country.

The date is the birth anniversary of Sri Birsa Munda who is revered as Bhagwan by tribal communities across the country. Birsa Munda fought bravely against the country against the exploitative system of the British colonial rule and spearheaded movement against British oppression giving a call for 'Ulgulan' (Revolution). The declaration acknowledges the glorious history and cultural heritage of tribal communities. The day will be celebrated every year and would recognize the efforts of the tribals for preservation of cultural heritage and promotion of Indian values of valour, hospitality and national pride. Tribal Freedom Fighter Museum at Ranchi where Birsa Munda breathed his last will be inaugurated by Hon'ble Prime Minister. Government of India has planned week long celebrations starting from 15th November to 22nd November 2021 to celebrate and commemorate 75 years of glorious history of tribal people, culture and achievements. As part of the celebration, several activities have been planned jointly with State Governments and the theme behind each activity is to show case the achievements of tribals in Indian Freedom struggle, various welfare measures taken by Government of India in education, health, livelihood, infrastructure and skill development. The events will also display the unique tribal cultural heritage, their contributions in freedom struggle, practices, rights, traditions, cuisines, health, education and livelihood.

Vodafone Idea, Nokia say 5G trial in rural Gujarat delivered speed of over 100Mbps

Vodafone Idea (Vi) and Nokia announced on Wednesday they had successfully conducted a trial of 5G connectivity in a rural area in Gujarat.

In a press release, the companies said the trial utilised 5G in the 3.5GHz spectrum band allocated by the government to provide rural broadband connectivity in Gandhinagar.

"Using Nokia's solution, Vi successfully trialled providing 5G connectivity across an area covering 17.1km while delivering speeds of more than 100Mbps," the press release said. Vi is using Nokia's AirScale radio portfolio and Microwave E-band solution for the trial that support enterprises, both large and small and medium businesses.

Jagbir Singh, Chief Technology Officer, Vi, said "Vi GIGAnet, India's fastest network, is enabling users in urban and rural areas, and enterprises, to stay ahead in this digital era. With our 5G ready network and our partner Nokia's field-proven solution, we are now working on providing solutions and use cases based on high-speed 5G coverage in rural areas."

Sanjay Malik, senior vice president and head of India Market, Nokia, said

"Our Fixed Wireless Access 5G solution is enabling service providers, like Vodafone Idea, to extend 5G coverage to remote areas, plug coverage gaps and increase service levels in rural areas." In a tweet last week, Nokia India had said, "Together with Vi, we achieved 9.85 Gbps of backhaul capacity using E-band microwave in 80 GHz spectrum, unlocking the potential of deploying 5G." The high-frequency zone of E band is expected to match transmission levels of optical fibres. In September, Vi claimed to have attained a peak speed of 3.7Gbps, the highest by any operator, during 5G trials in Pune.

NASA BUMPS ASTRONAUT MOON LANDING TO 2025 AT EARLIEST

NASA on Tuesday delayed putting astronauts back on the moon until 2025 at the earliest, missing the deadline set by the Trump administration. The space agency had been aiming for 2024 for the first moon landing by astronauts in a half-century. In announcing the delay, NASA Administrator Bill Nelson said Congress did not provide enough money to develop a landing system for its Artemis moon program and more money is needed for its Orion capsule.

In addition, a legal challenge by Jeff Bezos' rocket company, Blue Origin, stalled work for months on the Starship lunar landing system under development by Elon Musk's SpaceX.

Officials said technology for new spacesuits also needs to ramp up, before astronauts can return to the moon.

NASA is still targeting next February for the first test flight of its moon rocket, the Space Launch System, or SLS, with an Orion capsule. No one will be on board. Instead, astronauts will strap in for the second Artemis flight, flying beyond the moon but not landing in 2024, a year later than planned. That would bump the moon landing to at least 2025, according to Nelson.

"The human landing system is a crucial part of our work to get the first woman and the first person of color to the lunar surface, and we are getting geared up to go," Nelson told reporters. "NASA is committed to help restore America's standing in the world."

Nelson made note of China's ambitious and aggressive space program, and warned it could overtake the U.S. in lunar exploration.

NASA's last moon landing by astronauts occurred during Apollo 17 in 1972. Altogether, 12 men explored the lunar surface.

During a National Space Council meeting in 2019, Vice President Mike Pence called for landing astronauts on the moon within five years "by any means necessary." NASA had been shooting for a lunar landing in 2028, and pushing it up by four years was considered at the time exceedingly ambitious, if not improbable.

Congress will need to increase funding, beginning with the 2023 budget, in order for NASA to have private companies competing for the planned 10 or more moon landings by astronauts, Nelson said.

The space agency also is requesting a bigger budget for its Orion capsules, from $6.7 billion to $9.3 billion, citing delays during the coronavirus pandemic and storm damage to NASA's Michoud Assembly Facility in New Orleans, the main manufacturing site for SLS and Orion. Development costs for the rocket through the first Artemis flight next year stand at $11 billion.

Vice President Kamala Harris will convene her first National Space Council meeting, as its chair, on Dec. 1. Nelson said he updated her on the latest schedule and costs during their visit to Maryland's Goddard Space Flight Center on Friday.
