PM dedicates 75 Digital Banking Units across 75 districts to the nation

We have given top priority to ensure that banking services reach the last mile:PM

Banking today has gone beyond financial transactions and has also become a medium of 'Good Governance' and 'Better Service Delivery'

New Delhi, Oct. 16 (PIB)

The Prime Minister, Shri Narendra Modi dedicated 75 Digital Banking Units (DBU) across 75 districts to the nation via video conferencing. Addressing the gathering, the Prime Minister started by stressing that the 75 Digital Banking Units (DBU) will further financial inclusion and enhance banking experience for citizens. "DBU is a big step in the direction of Ease of Living for the common citizens", he said. The Prime Minister informed that in such a banking setup, the Government aims to provide maximum services with minimum infrastructure, and all of this will happen digitally without involving any paperwork. It will also simplify the banking procedure while also providing a robust and secure banking system. "People living in small towns and villages will find benefits like transferring money to availing loans. Digital Banking Units are another big step in that direction which is going on in the country to make the life of common man of India easier", he added.

The Prime Minister said that the aim of the Government is to empower the common citizen and make them powerful, and as a result, policies were made keeping in mind the last person and the entire Government moving in the direction of their welfare. He pointed out the two areas on which the Government worked simultaneously. First, reforming, strengthening, and making the banking system transparent, and secondly financial inclusion. Recalling the traditional ways of the past where people had to go to the bank, the Prime Minister said that this Government transformed the approach by bringing the bank to the people. "We have given top priority to ensure that banking services reach the last mile", he said. A huge change from the days when it was expected that poor will go to the bank to a scenario when the banks were going on the doorstep of the poor. This involved reduction of distance between the poor and the banks. "We not only removed the physical distance but, most importantly, we removed the psychological distance." Highest priority was given to cover far flung areas with banking. The Prime Minister informed that today more than 99 percent of villages in India have a bank branch, banking outlet or a 'banking mitra' within 5 km radius. "Extensive Post Office network too was harnessed via India Post Banks for providing the banking needs to the common citizens", he said. "Today the number of branches per one lakh adult citizens in India is more than countries like Germany, China and South Africa", he added.

Despite initial misgivings in certain sections, the Prime Minister said, "today the entire country is experiencing the power of Jan Dhan Bank accounts." He informed that these accounts enabled the Government to provide insurance to the vulnerable at a very low premium. "This opened the way for loans for the poor without collateral and provided Direct Benefit Transfer to the accounts of the target beneficiaries. These accounts were the key modality for providing homes, toilets, gas subsidy, and benefits of schemes for farmers could be ensured seamlessly", he said. The Prime Minister acknowledged the global recognition for India's digital banking infrastructure. "The IMF has praised India's digital banking infrastructure. The credit for this goes to the poor, farmers and labourers of India, who have adopted new technologies, made it a part of their lives", he emphasised.

"UPI has opened up new possibilities for India," the Prime Minister continued, "When financial partnerships are combined with digital partnerships, a whole new announcement of the launch of a digital currency based on blockchain technology, the Prime Minister pointed out that "Be it digital currency in the coming times, or digital transactions in today's time, apart from the economy, many important aspects are associated with them". He listed the savings, elimination of the hassle of physical currency and environmental benefits as key advantages. The Prime Minister pointed out that paper and ink for currency printing are imported, and by adopting a digital economy we are contributing to a self-reliant India while also benefiting the environment by reducing the consumption of paper.

The Prime Minister pointed out that banking today has gone beyond financial transactions and has also become a medium of 'Good Governance' and 'Better Service Delivery'. Today, this system has given rise to immense possibilities for growth for the private sector and small-scale industries as well. He further added that there is hardly any area in India in which product and service delivery through technology is not creating a new startup ecosystem. "Digital economy today is a great strength of our economy, of our startup world, of Make in India and of self-reliant India", he said. "Today our small industries, our MSMEs are also participating in Government tenders through a system like GEM. They are getting new business opportunities. So far, orders worth Rs 2.5 lakh crore have been placed on GEM. Many more new opportunities will now arise in this direction through digital banking units", he added.

"The economy of any country is as progressive as its banking system is strong", the Prime Minister remarked. He informed that the country has shifted from the pre-2014 'phone banking' system to digital banking in the last 8 years, and as a result, India's economy is moving forward with a continuum. Recalling the old ways, the Prime Minister pointed out that before 2014, the banks used to get phone calls to decide their functioning. He further added that phone banking politics had made the banks unsafe and made the country's economy insecure by sowing the seeds of thousands of crores of scams.
