2 calves, 12 goats, 300 hens, 6 dogs, and 7 pigs. These animals were not only treated for various ailments but also received the necessary medications, ensuring their health and well-being.

Beyond medical treatment, the camp also featured an interactive awareness session. This session was dedicated to educating farmers about livestock health and best practices, thus enhancing their knowledge and capabilities in animal care. Specific cases, such as addressing repeat breeding in a heifer, conducting pregnancy diagnoses in adult cows, managing diarrheal cases, and addressing poultry-related concerns, were given due attention and expert care.

To further support the health of the animals, deworming medications were distributed to the farmers for their cattle, goats, pigs, and dogs. Additionally, feed supplements, enriched with essential vitamins and minerals were provided to ensure that the livestock and poultry receive a balanced diet to support their overall health and productivity. The farmers requested for conducting more such Veterinary Health Camps in rural areas, a press release from Directorate of AH&VS said.
